MOVE BACK HOME FROM SUNNY SAN DIEGO

Blue Grass Blues Cause "Bob" Hughes And Family to Leave The Pacific Coast For Old Ken- tucky

Met Many Lancastrians Out West.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hughes and daughter, Miss Margaret Elkin Hughes, arrived in Lancaster Saturday night from San Diego, California, for an indefinite stay. They left Kentucky last July to make their future residence in the Golden State, but the transplanting was not a success. Home-sickness developed during the winter and they had planned a return journey as soon as the first year had ended, but the illness of Mrs. Hughes' father, Judge John W. Miller, brought them back earlier. All three are singing the praises of the Commonwealth noted for its sunshine, fruit and flowers, nevertheless their fondness for the Blue Grass land outweighed such attractions in a prospective adopted country, so they are back, never to wander again from the native soil.

"California is as wonderful as all the literature broadcast describes it to be," said Mr. Hughes, "and its lure gripped me hard during the three spring months I spent there, beginning this week twelve months ago—so hard, in fact, that I hurried to Louisville in June, packed up, and with Mrs. Hughes and Margaret, turned to the Pacific Coast. After four fortnights of sight-seeing from automobile windows—driving over the marvelous paved highways, in the shadows of mountain ranges, along miles of ocean beaches, through charming valleys, among cities that suggested enchantment—we settled in September at San Diego, truly advertised as 'Birthplace of California,' 'Harbor of Opportunity,' 'City of Fulfillment.' Here we found scores of former Kentuckians and many who hailed from Lancaster.

"Delightful acquaintances were made and old friendships renewed among these at meetings of the Kentucky State Society, of which Ernest G. Brown, brother of Post Master E. P. Brown, is Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. Brown, who will be remembered as Miss Mary Thompson, and her sisters, Misses Mattie and Lizzie, both married, the latter the wife of R. L. Jennings, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Thompson, have been San Diegans for many years. Other Lancastrians there included Henry Barlow and William Mullins' sister, Miss Ora Lee Mullins, who married several years ago. Mr. Mullins and his other sister, Miss Annie Mullins, now the wife of a Californian, make their homes in Los Angeles.

"While at Santa Barbara we called on Mrs. Charles J. Doty, sister of Miss Lena Bright, and her daughters, Misses Laura and Georgia Barnes Doty, the latter now wed, and at their home saw Harry Noel. One of the most interesting of the older former natives of Garrard, who spent the winter at San Diego, was Mrs. Clara Hann, who was Miss Clara Anderson before Mr. Hann came from Texas, over 50 years ago, to claim her as his bride. She was a niece of Rich- and Robinson of 'Camp Dick' fame, and is related to many of the present generation of Robinsons and Andersons in and around Lancaster.

"Their legion of friends here will be glad to know that Miss Marie Barnes, who played the little organ for her father, Rev. George D. Barnes, is in the best of health at San Diego, with her sister, Miss Georgia Barnes, now Mrs. Edward M. Duncan. Maj. and Mrs. Duncan and Miss Marie have been residents of San Diego since December, 1920. Miss Marie still has the little organ that was presented to her by the citizens of Lancaster when 'Brother Barnes' held his last series of meetings at the Court House.

"Other Lancastrians in different parts of California are Mrs. K. F. Postle, of San Fernando, who was Miss Annie Robinson; Mrs. G. F. Steele, of Los Angeles, who was Miss Minnie Elliott and Mrs. E. P. Halley, of Patterson, who was Miss Martha Elkin. Walter Hudson spent the winter in San Diego, but is now in Old Mexico.

"San Diego, like other California cities, is made up of 47 varieties of citizenship from all the other states,

QUIET COURT

Civil Cases Mostly This Week

The Garrard Circuit Court is still grinding and many cases are being disposed of. Most of the present week has been taken up with civil cases. The grand jury has turned in a few indictments and will sit several more days before it finally adjourns.

In the divorce case of Mrs. Della H. Acey against J. W. Acey, the plaintiff was given temporary alimony of $50 a month and all physician fees. This case will come up for final action at the August term. The case of Millard Johnson against John Rich for $25,000 damage, the jury decided in favor of Rich. The case of Virgil Gastineau against the Growers Insurance Company will take up most of the courts time today.

Coupled with the 'Native Sons and Daughters' This amalgamation goes on and on at rapid rate, accounting for the percentage growth of the state with Eureka as a motto, having surpassed all other states in the 1920 census enumeration. A Canadian, now resident of San Diego, once told me that the United States was made up of two classes of citizens—those living in California and those longing to live in California. I can amend this now to include two other classes—those living in Kentucky and those longing to return to live in Kentucky.

"Between trains at Kansas City, we met George D. Hurdlett, now secretary of the Federal Reserve Life Insurance Company there, his wife, who was Miss Lizzie Peacock, and their daughter, Mary, and talked by telephone with Mrs. Louise Packard, who was the late John Huffman's daughter. All are well and prosperous, but still Kentuckians, though away from Lancaster for years.

"Way down on the Rock Island Railway, while speeding Northeast on the 'Golden State Limited,' we renewed an acquaintance of more than three decades ago with the conductor, J. L. Seamands, who had the old Kentucky Central Railway run through Lancaster before the L. & N. took over the Rowland to Cincinnati line. He had delightful memories of Lancaster. The older folks here will remember him, I am sure."

Mr. Hughes resigned a very lucrative and constructive executive position to return with his home-sick family to Kentucky—that of vice president and managing director of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, with which was merged during his connection, the San Diego California Club, which has been spending over $100,000 annually for several years, advertising San Diego's distinctive climate, beautiful setting—more like Rio de Janeiro's than any other city in the world, and other advantages. He conducted the campaign last fall which raised $80,000 to buy 1,000 acres of San Diego bay-front lands for factory sites, and predicts a great industrial area on these lands in the near future. He was vice-director of the Red Cross membership drive for San Diego County last November. He served the Kentucky State Society as Chairman of the Executive Committee and declined the Presidency for 1922. One of his most pleasant duties in San Diego was that of Chairman of the Committee on Entertainment of the Centre College football team, when it went to the Coast for the Christmas game with the Arizona Wild Cats. Mr. Hughes was one of the directors of the Trans-Pacific Exposition to be held in San Diego in the spring of 1923, and was asked, just before he left with wife and daughter for Lancaster, to consider returning to San Diego to become Director General of the exposition from the first of next month to the close of the big show. As he had completed plans to renew his Kentucky citizenship, he declined. Mr. Hughes says San Diego has in its business manpower a force that will put the city in the half million class by 1940.

The Hughes home at 209 Kennedy Court, in Louisville, still owned by Mr. Hughes, as he had offers of only 75 per cent, of what he believed it to be worth when moving to California, is leased until August, so he and family may remain in Lancaster until the old home can be re-entered.

KILPATRICK

A Prince Of A Fellow State Historian Of Legion Here

He made them think! That in a few words expressed the opinion of those who heard Mr. Lewis Kilpatrick, of Mr. Sterling, speak last Sunday evening at the Union Meeting at the Christian Church in behalf of the Ex-service men and of the American Red Cross. Both of these organizations working together to help the helpless and to alleviate as far as humanly possible the suffering caused by the World War. In a simple, direct and forcible manner this man urged the necessity of keeping up the work of the Red Cross Community work in Garrard county. As an ex-service man himself he feels the need of greater efforts to carry on.

He urges that you give to the utmost of your means to the Garrard County Chapter of the Red Cross—all to be used for your children, for the sick and for the disabled soldiers.

Another meeting will be held next Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church at 7:30. The speaker of the evening will be Dr. S. E. Brewster of Louisville. He is eloquent and forceful and all who come to hear him will look at the Red Cross work in a more broad minded way and we believe criticize it less. A splendid musical program will be rendered.

Few persons know that the Garrard County Red Cross Chapter has now one patient being taken care of in Lexington, while undergoing an operation to prevent his going blind, and one ex-service man who has been helped in the Garrard County Red Cross Chapter with the local American Legion Post.

The Garrard County Red Cross Chapter has also five children in Louisville; two of these are threatened with blindness and are receiving treatment, and three are cripples who hope to be helped to walk again.

We feel sure that if the citizens of Lancaster and Garrard County knew of half the good work that has been accomplished in this county during the past two years, they would without question give what is asked of them in this Red Cross Roll Call.

In Lancaster the Woman's Club and the Chamber of Commerce have unanimously endorsed the community work and the following prominent women have volunteered their service in making a house to house canvass of the town and to see the business men and others:

For County Court Day
Mrs. Lela Landrum, Mrs. W. B. Huron, Mrs. Ed Gaines, Mrs. Joe Price, and Miss Mattie Lutz.

For House to House Campaign:
Danville St.—Mrs. F. B. Marks and Mrs. H. S. Hudson.
Lexington St.—Mrs. S. G. Haselden and Mrs. Ross Haselden.
Richmond St.—Miss Martha Gill and Miss Mary Davis.
Stanford St.—Mrs. Dave Thomas and Mrs. Joe Walker, Jr.
Maple Ave.—Mrs. Clay Sutton and Mrs. Charles M. Thompson.

Found Dead

Mr. J. D. Naylor, aged 74 years was found dead in bed last Tuesday morning and an inquest held by coroner Anderson found that he had died from a cerebral hemorrhage. Mr. Naylor was well known in the county, where he has lived most of his life and was a substantial and well-to-do farmer. He is survived by one daughter and one sister.

Burial took place in Lancaster cemetery yesterday afternoon.

More Taxes

School Budget May Be Increased To Maximum.

State Superintendent, George Colvin, has notified County School Superintendent Abner, that the school budget for the county should be increased to fifty cents, the maximum. This he says is necessitated by the Legislature having increased the school term from six to seven months.

The letter to Supt. Abner says: "My Dear Superintendent:—The Legislature increased the school term from six to seven months. This will make a difference in your budget. This will necessitate levying the maximum tax in each county it seems to me. I shall send you a digest of all measures passed by the Legislature effecting the rural schools within the next day or so."

Sincerely yours,
George Colvin,
State Superintendent.

COPPER STILL

Copped By Coppers On Copper Creek

A complete copper moonshine outfit was located on Copper Creek, near Rockcastle county line last Friday night, on the large farm said to be owned by C. C. Hagby, of Hoyle county, about four miles from Cartersville in Garrard county, and captured by Sheriff Robinson and deputies, Messrs. Morris, Hicks and Carter.

Indications showed that the still had been in operation and at least one "run" had been made. In the outfit captured was a very fine copper "worm" an inch and a quarter in diameter and said by the captors, to be the finest one they have yet destroyed. Three barrels of mash was poured out and in the mash were peaches, said to have been the "makings" of peach brandy. Several buckets, axes and grubbing hoes, numbered among the outfit captured. The still proper, which indications pointed was a copper one, was not found and no one was near the place, consequently no arrests have been made. Our county authorities are using every effort to check the moonshining industry in Garrard county, and it looks now as if they will accomplish their purpose. The "worm" was brought to town and cut to pieces, a portion of it can be seen in the office of the Central Record, presented by Mr. Carter.

Early last week these same officials captured a still near Cartersville on the farm of Jake Herndon, of Herea. No arrests were made but the entire outfit was destroyed.

Destructive Fire

Destroys Tailorshop And Barber Shop

Lancaster was visited with her first serious fire for several months, when yesterday morning about 3:40, Mr. Charlie Poff discovered the tailoring establishment of J. C. Davis was on fire, with the blaze issuing from two windows. He quickly gave the alarm and the family of Will Hall, who occupy rooms next to the burning room were hastily brought from their perilous position. From what Mr. Poff says, the fire evidently started in the tailorshop, which is just over the barber shop of Carl Curtis, as flames were pouring from the tailorshop rooms, before even a spark could be seen in the barber shop.

Mr. Davis' loss is entire, as he had no insurance, losing all his books and accounts, together with several new suits, which he had just completed and were ready for delivery to owners.

Mr. Curtis' loss is about $2,500, fully insured. Fortunate indeed it was that Mr. Poff happened to be on the public square at the time and discovered the fire before it got beyond control of the fire department, which responded promptly and with two streams of water soon had it under control.

The room occupied by Mr. Davis is the property of R. H. Tomlinson's heirs and had no insurance; G. C. Walker owned the lower room, which was insured.

Critically Ill

Friends of Mr. John Harrison Posey, will regret to learn of his serious illness at a Lexington hospital, where he was taken last Monday and operated upon for obstruction of the bowels. He has since developed pneumonia and word from his bedside, report his condition to be critical. Mr. Posey is one of Garrard county's most useful and substantial citizens and a gentleman of the very highest type. We hope to hear favorable news from him soon, and that his recovery will no longer be doubted.

Beware Dog Owners

In this issue of the Record can be found a notice from the foreman of the present grand jury, notifying all dog owners who have not paid their 1922 license, that an indictment will be issued by Friday March 31st. This is the law with the bark on it, and if not complied with, great will be the consequences.

Mr. Dog Man

Take Notice

We, the Grand Jury in Session, hereby give notice to the DOG OWNERS of Garrard County, that all dog owners who have not procured their 1922 license by Friday, March 31st, 1922, will be indicted by this Grand Jury and will be subject to both a fine and imprisonment.

LEGION

Accomplishes Great Work

U. S. VETERANS BUREAU MEN HERE TO ASSIST GARRARD COUNTY SERVICE MEN

Work For The Organization That Works For You.

Another great day's work was accomplished by the Heidal Sanford Post of the American Legion for Lancaster and Garrard County when on Monday and Tuesday of this week they had Messrs. F. E. Dennen, Contact Officer and Schwaler of the U. S. Veterans Bureau of Lexington and Mr. Stone W. Norman also an ex-service man, of Richmond here to fill out and assist the service men of this county who desired to apply for compensation, Victory Medals, or to add further to any of the men's claims who were asked to furnish additional affidavits for their claims.

These gentlemen were assisted by members of the local post of the Legion and should be highly complimented by the great and heroic work that they accomplished for the eighty or more disabled veterans of this county. This is just another incident of the great work that the American Legion is doing and as the Record has stated in other articles they should have the entire support of every patriotic citizen of the county as well as every ex-service man of this county.

The members of the Heidal Sanford Post, although small in number, have worked unceasingly for the service men of Garrard county and have cared for them as no other organization has done or can do as they work in direct connection and carry out every wish and desire of the Government when making any claim for her buddies.

As stated above, one-third of the service men of the county who belong to such an honorable and just organization as they have, but we are glad to state that we had the pleasure of visiting their headquarters while these gentlemen were here, and we asked of many of the men if they belonged to the Legion, and they did not, however, they were given the same courteous treatment as were the very legionnaires who have done all for the Garrard County service men. We would like to say that all this Heidal Sanford Post of the American Legion wants are men who have received an honorable discharge, and who are worthy of belonging to this splendid post. Remember you cannot afford to continue to ask the service men of the Legion to fight for you when you do not belong to their post. This is an unjust act and the thing for you to do is send in your membership to the proper ones and join this lively bunch of real buddies, who are still fighting for God and Country and 100 per cent Americanism.

Gentlemen, those of you, who came the distance that you did to assist the local post of the Legion have our best of good wishes. We will gladly recommend you to the world and we ask that you call and see us again.

Club House May Be Built At Lake

The Lake Placid Fishing Club held its regular meeting at the Citizens Bank last Saturday night and all the old officers were re-elected to serve for the ensuing year. Business of much interest was discussed, chief among them, the building of a Club House, near the lake for the benefit of the members of the club.

There are about forty paying members now and some fine sport was had during the past year. It was decided that all boats should and will be removed from the lake and that with the permission of the city council, two piers will be built out in the lake. We suggest that one of these piers be reserved for the writer of this article and the other for Mayor Champ. Of course we don't mean to be presumptuous and if there should be any serious objection to this suggestion, we are willing, with the Mayor's consent, to withdraw it.

Old Deeds

Mr. G. A. Abbott showed us some very old English deeds, which he prizes very highly and which he has just secured from Woods Burton on Kentucky river. Both deeds are in good condition, written on heavy parchment and very legible. One is dated in the year 1674 and the other in 1741.

RADIOPHONE

Wonderful Progress Made In Latest Invention

The wonderful progress of the radiophone during the past few months, have almost startled those who have been keeping in touch with this latest invention and it looks now that soon it may be possible to read ones secret thoughts, so rapid are the improvements coming to the wireless telephone.

It is estimated that there are now 700,000 receiving stations throughout the country and that installations are being made at the rate of 500 sets a month. It also claimed that the factories are behind with $50,000,000 in orders. Fabulous sums! Can you realize it? Some one has recently discovered a new link between the radio and the telephone, by which one can listen in on his neighbor's telephone line, has been thoroughly demonstrated and proven efficient. A sixteen year old Cincinnati boy has constructed a radio receiving set at a cost of three dollars. With an ordinary umbrella as his aerial, and his receiving set which he can carry in his pocket, he is able to take up messages sent from stations as far as fifty miles away.

Details of construction are contained in a circular which any one may obtain upon request from the United States Bureau of Standards, at Washington.

Commercial Organiza- tions Entertained At Lexington Yes- terday

Messrs. G. B. Swinebroad, J. E. Stormes and G. A. Abbott, of the local Chamber of Commerce were in Lexington yesterday, the guests of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting of the Blue Grass Commercial Organizations of Kentucky. About nine organizations were represented.

One of the largest delegations came down from Richmond, which city has just organized a Chamber of Commerce. Upon its invitation the April meeting will be held in Richmond and the May meeting in Georgetown. Winchester has just organized with 400 members with dues at $25 each and all paid in advance.

Prominent speakers were on the program and a very delightful day was spent.

Farmers Meeting

Mr. Geoffrey Morgan, of Louisville, Secretary of the Kentucky Federal Farm Bureau, will address a meeting of the farmers of Garrard County at the Court House in Lancaster, Monday, March 27th (Court Day) at 1:30 o'clock. The purpose of this meeting is to organize a Farm Bureau in Garrard County. Every farmer is urged to attend this meeting.

Mr. Morgan is a pleasing speaker and every one will enjoy hearing him. Mr. Morgan is known by a great many in Garrard County and we are sure he will have a good audience.

Wilson Fund To Close

Garrard County's quota for the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fund lacks about two-thirds of reaching its goal, but chairman Mount tells us he will close the drive next Monday, but hopes that many who have not yet subscribed will come forward before that time.

More About Wicked Mr. Fox

Editor Central Record:—

Please run the following clipping from the Southern Agriculturist, which might be applicable in Garrard county:

"W. B. K., of Kentucky, charges the fox with not only being bad himself, but with having a bad influence on poor humanity. He writes: 'The fox makes an outlaw out of a good neighbor. This neighbor has a pack of dogs; he will get a gang of niggers and some moonshine whiskey and go fox hunting. In the dead hours of night when all honest people are asleep they will prow around on other people's land, breaking down fences, leaving gates open, stealing traps, shooting, hollering and cussing and wind up all asleep in a fence corner.'

Evidently, there is a small love for Mr. Fox among the readers of the Southern Agriculturist."

Yours very truly,
J. C. Rigby.

American Legion News

The American Legion of Ludlow, Vt., has made official report of the prowess of John Sheehan, overseas doughboy, who strangled to death a wild-cat with his bare hands. The American Federation of Labor will assist the American Legion in finding jobs for 700,000 unemployed service men, according to President Samuel Gompers.

Fourteen states already have refused financial assistance to the move for a George Washington and World War Memorial building in Washington, D. C., and 16 other states will follow suit, according to the American Legion's legislative committee. The Legion opposes construction of the elaborate memorial at a time when thousands of ex-service men are jobless and in need.

A badly decomposed body found on the banks of the Cumberland River near Nashville, Tenn., was given a military burial by the American Legion when searches found a Legion button and membership card in the clothing.

In Corning, N. Y., the American Legion is still selling flour to get money for its relief work. "Help the Legion by Corning flour" is the selling motto.

When police in Nashville, Tenn., raided an alleged bootlegger, they found his liquor tightly locked in a safe, and appealed to the local American Legion post for man-power. The Legion called an expert overseas locksmith from its ranks. He cracked the safe and exposed 30 quarts.

Department of Justice operatives and the American Legion, rounding up bogus army uniform wearers in Chicago, picked up a self-admitted outstanding hero of the war. Investigation showed he had evaded registration for the draft. He was wearing, however, insignia of the 77th Division, stripes of a master sergeant, service and wound chevrons, marksmanship medals and American and foreign decorations.

Nine communities in each state will receive certificates of merit for exceptional work in providing employment for ex-service men from Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion. The awards will follow the Legion campaign for jobs culminating in Legion Employment Day, March 20th.

Sick and wounded soldiers of the World War are receiving more than $1,000 a month from the famous Busch gardens in Pasadena. More than 40,000 adults have visited the gardens since last August, when Mrs. Lily Busch began giving the revenue to the American Legion for the relief of destitute service men.

President Harding has recommended the creation of a commission to control the erection of American war memorials on the battlefields of Europe. Secretary Weeks, General Pershing, Commander Hanford MacNider and one senator and one representative would comprise the Harding commission.

New York will be the first state to give a cash compensation to disabled, unemployed ex-service men. A fund of $1,000,000 will be appropriated by the legislature. Gov. Miller has assured the American Legion, fostering the bill. Only sick or wounded men who have been out of work for 30 days will benefit.

Citizenship clubs for the benefit of young people for the discussion of current issues of the day will be formed by the American Legion Auxiliary in 4,500 communities in every state. Local units of the Auxiliary will sponsor the community clubs.

A proposal that the Government issue a representative coin or a bill of small denomination bearing a typical American soldier's head has been made to the American Legion of Massachusetts. The coin in honor of the soldiers of '18 would be known as the "Doughboy Dollar."

The American Red Cross has contributed $35,000 to the American Legion, enabling the ex-service men's organization to retain 14 liaison representatives at the regional offices of the U. S. Veterans Bureau.

George Washington And Modern Times.
The next morning when George awoke, he combed his long hair, and made ready for breakfast. After eating he told Martha he believed he would go vote.

"Well, if you just wait a bit until I get ready, I'll go along as you go."
"What, you go? Why what business have you at the poles?"
"Oh! I forgot to tell you that all the women of age are voting now!"
"Well—well," murmured George—"I wonder what this world is coming to."

to."
"Why, isn't it right for women to vote as well as men, George? Say, old man, your bobbed hair looks very bad and if I were you I'd go to a barber and get a hair cut."

"Poor old me," sighed George—"Martha, it's a wonder you wouldn't just pull my hair all out yourself—I don't see what you're going to tell me next. I almost wish I had not risen from the dead."

"Oh, don't be disagreeable, George. Now go along to the barber shop," said Martha, and George hobbled off down the street. He had only walked a short distance when a horn sounded close by him. He jumped and almost fell with fright. There in another minute an automobile narrowly missed him—"The hord knows what that thing is, but I don't. I'll catch it though," and he started running but of course didn't keep that up long. "I'll just ask that man coming what the thing was." He approached the man slowly, saying, "Sir, what are these things running around on four wheels?"

"Why, automobiles, of course," said the man as he looked at him strangely. Then he walked off to tell his comrades about the crazy old man he had seen, while George stood gazing about him. (Continued)

Memorial

The sudden death of Mr. Curtis Pierce on March 14th, came as a shock to his many friends and relatives. Mr. Pierce was one of the oldest and best known citizens of Garrard county. He was born in Russell county, Jan. 9, 1838, came to Garrard about the age of fifteen. At about the age of twenty he was married to Miss Emily Simpson, of Buckeye. There were seven children born to this union: two girls and five boys. Four boys are left to mourn his loss: Frank, of Louisville, Obe T., of Washington, D. C., James, of Danville, and Joe, of this county.

Mr. Pierce was a veteran of the Civil War, having served for over three years as sergeant in the 7th, Kentucky Cavalry. For nearly fifty years he had been a member of the Baptist church at Buckeye. The writer had the pleasure of being his pastor for five years and also closely associated with him in his home. He was loyal to his church and pastor and also loyal to the Great Cause for which the church and pastor stood. He loved his Bible and spent many, many hours in gleaming its sacred pages. At the ripe age of 84 years, 2 months and 5 days he went out to meet his Maker.

Funeral services were held in the Buckeye Baptist church, conducted by the writer, after which the body was passed away in the old church yard. D. E. Sebastian.

"WORLD SUNDAY" March 26th., Day Set To Close Up Centenary Mission Movement

A simultaneous effort throughout Southern Methodist territory, on March 26, to be known as "World Sunday," will, it is said, call the attention of delinquent subscribers to the Centenary of Missions movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to a shortage in collections on behalf of that movement.

It is expected that on "World Sunday" pastors of the 18,000 church congregations in Southern Methodism will revive the Centenary and portend the disastrous results to the big missionary program launched three years ago if the deficit is not made good.

ash payments on overdue Centenary subscription will be solicited on "World Sunday" and during the following week a churchwide canvass will be made to secure the payment of arrears.

The original drive for the Centenary fund taken three years ago was for $35,000,000 to be paid through a period of five years. It is announced that only forty per cent of the amount due has been paid to date, whereas sixty per cent is now due. It is to meet this shortage that Methodists throughout the South are seeking to arouse the mind of the church along Centenary lines.

A QUEEN ANNE

By ANNIE COLE, R. N.

Condie had caught the "society bug" there was no doubt about it. In Joe's mind. And she had caught it from his own brother's wife, which meant it a great deal worse. Every evening when Joe came home, he was forced to listen to Condie's praises of Martha—her ability to design and execute her own gowns, run an apartment on it—street attend whilst clubs, entertain, and keep a maid—all on her husband's moderate salary.

"We're going to visit there this week end, Joe," said Condie, enthusiastically. "We don't make any engagement for tomorrow. Oh, dear, don't you think we could afford an apartment if we sold this place?"

"We might if we wanted to mortgage my salary for the rest of our lives," said Joe, dryly.

"Oh, hush! and you know what a horror I have of debt!" Condie's blue eyes were reproachful.

"Well, we're going there for Saturday anyhow. I think Martha's awfully clever and I'm going to try to be just like her!"

Joe groaned, and betook himself to bed.

The Saturday night dinner at his brother Jim's was apparently a success, though Joe did not seem to enjoy it. In the morning he couldn't get up. In terror Condie called a doctor, who pronounced the trouble pneumonia, forbade moving the patient, and advised a trained nurse.

Martha was very gracious, plans were made, the nurse engaged, and Condie donned a dingy old apron, prepared for a long siege. Everything went smoothly until Monday morning. Missing Martha at the breakfast table, Condie tapped on her bedroom door.

"I'm not going to get up this morning," her sister-in-law informed her. "Tell Mary I'll breakfast in bed."

The doorknob rang and Condie answered it. A dapper little man stood in the hallway.

"Mrs. Barker?"

"Yes."

"I am from London, the furrier's. We want you should pay something on this bill for a white coat, or we will start to sue you."

"The you mean the other Mrs. Barker," said Condie. "She's sick in bed."

"Well, I'll call next week," he said and bowed himself away.

"Joe," roared the big man. "Twenty cents, please. I am ordered to collect cash in this house, every time! Thank you!"

Another man appeared in the doorway, as if by magic.

"Who are you?" demanded Condie.

"I'm the milkman. I'm collecting a dollar a week on this old bill—she said she'd pay it off that way." Then she turned to the cluttered kitchen and addressed the untidy maid.

"Mary, how will the nurse and I have lunch if these dishes are not soon washed?"

"I don't know, and I don't care," that young person replied. "When Mrs. Barker's here alone, we don't have lunch. I've got the three lodgers' rooms to look after."

"Lodgers?" queried Condie, bewildered.

"Sure," explained Mary, and then she added indignantly. "Don't think she could live in a swell apartment if somebody didn't help her pay the rent!"

So this was how Martha managed! An agonizing race to borrow from Peter to pay Paul, accompanied by aching eyes and frayed nerves. The nurse, on the way to the kitchen for a glass of milk said:

"Your husband seems very much better today. Mrs. Barker—I don't think you'll need me tomorrow."

"Oh, impossible!"

"Well, we'll see what Dr. Kendall says tonight."

The doctor's verdict was a pleasant surprise. "Humph," he observed. "Very fortunate young man. What we call an abortive case; clears up suddenly, for apparently no reason. You can dismiss your nurse, and take your husband home in a taxi tomorrow—if you wish."

If she wished! She could hardly wait till she had gone to tell Joe how glad she'd be to get home and to hug him, regardless of germs.

"Condie," he said, a little weakly from the bed. "I was talking to Jim Saturday night, and he says there's an apartment downstairs to rent if you think we could manage."

"Not on your life!" exploded his wife, emphatically. "My tiny flat is good enough for me! I've heard an expression somewhere that just fits this place, Joe. It's this: 'A Queen Anne front hides a Mary Ann back.' I'm going to take you home!"

Never Too Late to "Bob."

The oldest inmates of the Daughters of Israel home at Newark, N. J., a woman of 110 years, has had her hair bobbed. The management of the home, says a Central News wire from New York, were much upset when the old lady requested that her style of hair-dressing should be made to accord with the prevailing fashion. The matter was gravely discussed, and as there was nothing in the rules and regulations to the contrary they gave way to granny's insistent demand that her hair should be bobbed. "Just like the other girls." That done the happy centenarian said: "I am only 110, and I expect to break the record of my grandmother, who lived to be 123."

COAL STRIKE

Likely To Choke Nations And Produce Serious Shortage

Each day brings the coal strike closer and no one can guess the ultimate result. Each side is ready and determined to settle this long delayed test of strength. Many homes and factories have been laying in supplies against this day and are prepared to weather through. The real pinch will come next winter when the coal rush will go on. Wise ones are filling their bins now and will rest comfortable next winter. The nineteen demands of the miners, formulated at their convention in Shamokin, Pa., in January and ratified by the international convention at Indianapolis last month, were to be formally presented to the coal operators and explained in detail by officers of the union. The operators were expected to take them under consideration and make a statement of their position on Friday.

The miners are asking for a 20 per cent increase in contract rates, among other things, while the mine owners are on record as favoring a decrease below the present working basis.

It is not expected that an agreement will be reached before the end of the month, and in that event the scale committee of hard coal workers is under instruction of the Shamokin convention to order a suspension of mining until a satisfactory agreement is in sight.

The miners enter the joint conference determined, they said, to resist with all their power any effort to reduce their present wage scale as indicated by the operators. "There must be no backward step," President Lewis has said, and the miners have declared themselves as unanimous in supporting him.

The principal demands of the miners follow:

A two-year contract.
A 20 per cent increase in the contract wage scale; $1 a day increase to all labor paid by the day, and that differentials existing between different classes of employees prior to the 1920 award be restored.
A uniform wage scale in all collieries for occupation of like character.

An eight-hour day for all employees those working under ground to count their hours from the time they enter the mine until they leave it.

A standard check-off provision.

Theat where coal is paid for by the car the system be changed to a tonnage basis.

Memorial

A. T. Miles was born in Palmyra County, Missouri, in 1850, and came to Kentucky in 1881. He was called to rest, following a brief illness November 5, 1921. The funeral services were conducted at Nicholasville Baptist Church by his pastor, J. F. Price, assisted by D. F. Sebastian, his former pastor.

He was converted in early manhood and united with the Nicholasville Baptist Church, where he served acceptably as Sunday School superintendent for twenty-five years. A few years ago he removed his church letter to Liberty Baptist Church, Garrard County, and served the Lord nobly as deacon in this church up to his death. In the church, in society and in the home, brother Miles was quiet, gentle, and unassuming, yet his opinions, in many things were important and men went to him often for counsel.

He served Jessamine County several years as teacher and as county official. Men in many states can be found who occupy positions of honor, who can trace their training for usefulness, back to their school days under brother Miles' instructions. He was one of the Western Record's best friends and his home has never been without Baptist papers. He believed that information, concerning our great Baptist programs, was necessary to induce our people to give their best to the Master, therefore he urged all to read the Recorder. He was a successful financier and practiced giving to the Lord the first fruits of his increase. He paid his entire subscription to the 75-Million Campaign the first year, saying that if the Lord took him away before the five years expired that his whole pledge would be paid.

Resolutions

Whereas, the Lord in His infinite wisdom has taken from our midst, brother A. C. Miles, be it resolved:

First, that Liberty Baptist Church has lost one of its most useful, earnest, consecrated members.

Second, That the community, has lost a worthy benevolent neighbor.

Third, That we, as deacons, have lost a wise counsellor and lovable co-worker.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be given to the bereaved family, a copy be put on our church record and a copy be sent to the Western Recorder.—(Western Recorder.)

AUNT THERESA

By HELEN S. MARSH

Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Aunt Theresa sat studying the worn rug carpet on the floor of the little sitting room. How faded and old the carpet had become! Why shouldn't it? For many years it had served its purpose. The red strips came from the happy school days. The gray strips were pieces of her mother's wedding gown; the brown, a portion of her own wedding dress—yes, she could recall fond memories woven in the floor covering. The eyes grew misty, the colored strips seemed to dance, then faded to sight.

"How childish of me!" Aunt Theresa said aloud, wiping the tears away with the corner of the little white apron. "This is the time of all the year I should be happy and thankful, I suppose; but, somehow, Thanksgiving week doesn't seem as it did once. It's been so long since I've had a Thanksgiving dinner—with company about—to cheer."

"Nearly half past nine, Puss!" Aunt Theresa had the habit of talking to her yellow cat—"Time for the stage. I'll just slip on my things and be ready by the time the mail is open."

She folded the little apron carefully and went out into the cold. 'Twas an event in her lonely life to go to the post office for the pension envelope.

"Good morning, Aunt Theresa," said the kind postmistress as she passed her the long, yellow document. "I'm glad to see you this morning. Wait, here is another letter for you." She passed Aunt Theresa a dainty violet envelope with a rich purple seal on the back.

"Dear me," said Aunt Theresa, excitedly, scanning the envelope. "How I wish I had my reading glasses with me!"

"Perhaps I can tell you what's in mine, as I have one just like it," said Miss Lucy Bangs—Miss Lucy was a maiden lady who lived across the way from Aunt Theresa. She hurriedly tore open the envelope. She read eagerly. "It's an invitation to Mrs. Hamlin's house for Thanksgiving day. Did you ever," she exclaimed, peering over her glasses at Aunt Theresa. "I noticed Mr. Brown's widow and Sarah Butler got one, and there's one in old Mr. Libby's box, yes, and there's one in Mr. and Mrs. Henderson's box, too. Now, isn't that good of the Hamlins to do such a thing?"

"Just walk along with me and come in a spell," said Aunt Theresa, "and we'll talk it over." The two old ladies trudged along as happily as children.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin and three children lived in a big stone house, Hamlin Hall, on the hill; that is, they lived there summer, but usually went away early in October to their home in the city.

"Let us stay here this year until after Thanksgiving," Mrs. Hamlin had said, "and see what a Thanksgiving dinner would be like in the country."

"A capital idea," Mr. Hamlin had exclaimed. "So dainty invitations were sent to the older folks and to the young folks, which gave happy anticipation before the eventful day."

Aunt Theresa went to the depths of the old trunk for her finery to wear on the dress in your best day.

There was the green merino she wore years ago at the last Thanksgiving dinner when William, her husband, and she, had invited the Traigs and the Pikes. Son George was home from college. How he liked the dress! She would wear that and the lace collar and cameo pin, also the white mantle.

"Thanksgiving day dawned bright, clear and crisp, without snow. The Hamlin's automobile chugged up the hill many times that forenoon with the happy passengers."

"Oh, there are to be children here, too!" exclaimed Aunt Theresa with joy.

"The children loved 'Aunt' Theresa, and it was they who had named her 'Aunt.'"

Hamlin Hall was a gay, happy place that day. The beautiful dinner, the games, the music—how good everything was! The laughter of children and the general good cheer gladdened everyone.

When the happy folks were ready to go, Mr. Hamlin said: "The invitations which you've all received for today are good for next year, and so on, as long as we live in Hamlin Hall. We are thankful for this privilege of glad-making your hearts."

"Well, Puss," said Aunt Theresa, as she packed away the green merino dress that night, "this has been a joyful day. I am thankful for all my blessings."

In the Jungle.

What's in the heart of the Congo jungle? Gorillas, big snakes, cannibals, beating tom-toms and eating missionaries? That's the general notion. But there's something else.

That of the heart of the Congo last year came 70,000,000 pounds of copper.

The white man is penetrating every where, and with him goes hard work, the price of this so-called civilization. Is it worth while? It is, because happier before the white man brings the trustlock?

A Kick as Visitor Enters.
That a sense of humor is not altogether quenched by the humdrum of work in a government office is evidenced by a placard which appears on the door of a department of the pension ministry in London. It reads: "Everyone closes our door—except you."

Lightning Flash Measured.
No doubt lightning flashes vary in thickness but one photographed recently was estimated, from the size of the trace it left on a photograph and the distance of the tower it struck from the camera, to be only one-fifth of an inch, not much more than some artificial electric sparks.

Baron a True Diplomat.
From London comes a story of Baron Hayashi, which, if not true, deserves to be true. And if it is true, he is a diplomat to his finger tips. Said the baron: "I knew you liked music."—Japan Advertiser.

Notice.

To The Citizens of Garrard County:
A great deal of complaint is coming to me as your County Judge that owners of live stock in some localities are permitting it to run at large to the annoyance of the public and in violation of law. Some have asked for legal steps to prevent it. It appearing to me that many good citizens who want to observe the law do not understand their duty in this matter. I, therefore, give this notice.

All the territory in magisterial districts No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, of Garrard County, have heretofore voted in favor of the stock law and the law is in effect, therefore, in these three districts which is all of Garrard county except district No. 4. Any person who wilfully or by neglect suffers cattle, sheep, hogs, or any other live stock to run at large are subject to a fine. Under the law any livestock of any person which gets out of any person's enclosure in any way and damages another person the owner of such livestock is subject to damages to the extent of any injury done. I, therefore, urge all persons owning livestock in Garrard county in these three districts to observe this law and keep livestock enclosed, which will avoid much vexatious litigation.

In the future this law will be enforced.

This March 15th, 1922.

G. M. Treadway, County Judge of Garrard County, Ky.

SHEEP CARE DURING WINTER

Bringing Ewes Should Be Kept Thrifty and Not Allowed to Lose in Weight.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

At this season the flock owner is principally interested in fat and winter feeding and maintenance. The shepherd should train himself to read the condition of his sheep by feeling the bone of the loin or back. At no time while they are in lamb should ewes be allowed to lose weight. In open, wet fall seasons there is danger of waiting too long to start feeding.

Winter management is very important in its effect upon the returns from the flock. Leguminous hays, straw and cornstalks usually form the main part of economical winter rations. Cover alfalfa or clover hay. If of good quality, may be used as the sole feed until near lambing time, from 3 to 25 pounds daily being sufficient for ewes weighing less than 150 pounds. That and wheat straw are better than rye or barley straw. Corn stalks placed where the ewes can eat off the leaves may be used as a part of the roughage ration. If this ration is made up largely of cornstalks or straw, a nitrogenous concentrate should also be used. Timothy hay is not good sheep feed.

Silage will reduce the cost of the ration, but it is best to use it with hay. Feed only silage made from well-matured corn and be sure that it is not spoiled, frozen or moldy. Three pounds per head a day is the limit for dry feed. For bred ewes, roots, particularly turnips, should be used sparingly until after lambing. The two rations here given will be found satisfactory for ewes from 120 to 145 pounds in weight:

Ration No. 1.

2 pounds alfalfa hay.
2 pounds corn silage.
14 pounds mixed corn.

Ration No. 2.

14 pounds alfalfa hay.
2 pounds corn silage.

If the ewes run on fall wheat or rye during the winter the pasture must be supplemented by some dry or concentrated feed. Silage and roots are not desirable when the pasture is green. One half pound of cottonseed meal contains the daily protein requirement for pregnant ewes and it should be used when the price is right. However, a quarter pound along with other feeds containing protein may be better than one containing a larger amount of cottonseed meal.

Exercise for the ewe in winter is necessary if strong lambs are to be produced. They can be induced to take exercise by scattering their feed over the ground which will induce them to do a great deal of walking. Another way is to do the feeding some distance from the shelter. Winter pasture will, of course, solve the problem of exercise. But the flock ought not to be out in rain or wet snow, as a wet fleece is a frequent cause of colds and pneumonia. A sheep will shake off dry snow and be none the worse for having been out in a storm.

Present conditions should be no discouragement to a person who thinks of starting a flock, for the man who succeeds with live stock is the one who goes in and stays in through dry years and long. Perhaps it is better to go in when prices are low, for then it costs less for foundation stock.

It is doubtful whether a man should start keeping sheep unless his farm will allow the keeping of at least 50 ewes, and in most cases 100 or more will be handled better and more economically than a very small flock. Ewes should be discarded at five years of age. When this is done and the poorest of the ewe lands are sold a flock will ordinarily double in size in three years.

McLean Farmers Co-operate In Improving Dairy Herds

Organization of the McLean county Cooperative Purebred Jersey Sire Association recently completed in that county brings the total number of such organization in the State to a total of six, according to E. M. Prewitt, dairy extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. Sixty-five members of the organization, who are owners of 152 cows, will follow the association plan of improving their herds by the cooperative use of three purchased sires which will be purchased. Officers of the new association are: President, Bud Walker and secretary-treasurer, Homer Glover. These two men together with Hugh Robinson, Guy Settle and Hugh Herndon will form the executive committee.

Farm And Home News From Over Kentucky

Todd County farmers who are interested in the improvement of their home orchards will have an opportunity to observe different methods in ten orchards the owners of which will cooperate with the College of Agriculture extension division in following recommended methods, according to County Agent I. C. Grady. The work, which is said to mark a new interest in orcharding, is the result of one demonstration conducted last year by G. W. Rudd, it is reported.

Work in standardizing the farm flocks of Harlan county with one breed of poultry is expected to go forward rapidly this year, County Agent Robert T. Harrison has reported. Orders already have been received for a total of 55 settings of purchased hatching eggs to be used in the movement.

Following a series of four night meetings recently held in the county in the interests of a big cholera and cattle tuberculosis eradication campaign, Washington county farmers are showing increased interest in stamping out these two diseases which annually cause heavy losses in their herds, Assistant County Agent H. R. Cottrell has reported.

In their efforts to improve the methods of cattle feeding being followed on their farms, Nelson county farmers living in the vicinity of Boone, accompanied by Wayland Rhoads, beef cattle extension specialists from the College of Agriculture recently took an inspection tour to the feed lots of eight different farmers in the community. Records being kept on the different steer feeding practices will be discussed at a later meeting, according to County Agent C. L. Hill.

Records being kept on their poultry flocks by 50 Daviess county farm women who are cooperating with County Agent J. W. Whitehouse and the College of Agriculture extension division are helping many farmers in that section of the State solve their problems of poultry feeding and management, it is reported.

There are some people who go through life with a smooth serenity that is seldom ruffled. It is not ruffled because they do not trouble to go deeply into affairs and conditions around them. They do no harm in the world, and sometimes exert themselves to the extent of doing a little good. We like them, but they command no great amount of admiration.

There is another class, and they are in the majority, who are not averse to speaking their minds. Generally they are fair students of men and conditions, dig down after facts, make up their minds after a careful analysis, and then stand by their convictions. They give praise where it is due, but do not hesitate to censure when it comes necessary. They are the constructive citizens of this country.

And then there is still a third class. They are the kickers—the chronic ones—and their happiest moments are when they are kicking at something, or somebody, or both. They come into the world kicking, go through life with a kick, and kick like the devil because they have to shuffle off. They are destructive to society, but more destructive to themselves.

The choice is yours.

Farmers are becoming more scientific in their methods of cultivating and managing their farms. You have only to watch the farm implement houses and watch their sales to become convinced of this fact.

A few years ago the farmer clung to the old methods, and literally worked himself to death for slight returns. His family shared the same fate.

Then he woke up, decided he was on the wrong track, righted himself, and started to forge ahead. He is still forging, outstripping many other industries in the progress he is making.

He has his ups and downs, but the downs don't bother him much. He just steps over them and keeps on going.

Such men make a country great.

In all due courtesy we are inclined to liken a school teacher to a hen with a large brood of little chicks.

The hen is always mothering them, protecting them from harm, and training them in the way they should go.

"We all admire a good mother, and are loath to part with her."

A conscientious school teacher is much like the hen. She mothers her little flock, keeps a jealous eye upon each individual member, trains it in the way of truth, and honor, and intelligence, and education, and lays the foundation upon which its future success depends.

But we are not always as mindful of the welfare of the teacher as we are of the hen. That's the difference.

Never use profanity in the presence of a child.

It may not understand, but nature has endowed it with the power of imitation.

When we hear a young boy reeling off cuss words by the yard we often wonder where he learned them. Sometimes we accuse the other boys with whom he associates—and that prompts us to wonder where they learned them.

But often the lesson was learned in his own home, with his own father as his instructor—unintentionally, perhaps, but nevertheless his instructor.

If a father and his little son are out in the yard, and the father begins to romp around, the child will do likewise. It is the human tendency to imitate, stronger in the juvenile than in the adult.

Romping or cussing, it is all the same.

Forget the cussing.

The Meat In Duty

It is the duty of every citizen to vote in the primaries, and also at election time.

But duty does not begin or end there.

Going along with our party is not enough. It is not the way to insure good government.

Just "going along" enables the wrong element to secure control of the party, and that means poor government when the party is in control. It also aids in putting the party out of control.

Our greatest care should be exercised in nominating our candidates.

We should study both the past and the present of each person who is up for nomination. If his past is not clean we should not consider him for a moment. If his present does not offer prospects of satisfactory achievements while in office he should be passed by in favor of a better man.

The ability to make pleasing and enticing noises with his mouth does not necessarily indicate that a man would be successful as a public official. It requires brains and integrity, as well as words, to make good.

"Going along with our party" is alright, provided we harness up the right men for leaders.

And the man should fit the harness.

We believe in Tanlac and so will you if you try it.

Mrs. G. A. Lackey Dies

This community learned with deep regret of the passing away of Mrs. A. Goodline Lackey, which occurred last evening at six o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Price, where she had made her home since the death of her husband, which occurred in Kansas City, July, 1905. The deceased had been a semi-invalid for a number of years. She was born January 20, 1862 in Kansas City, Mo. She was widely known and much beloved throughout this section of Kentucky, and will be greatly missed. The following children survive: Mrs. H. H. Price, of Danville; and Miss Mary Goodline Lackey, of Washington City, besides two sisters, Mrs. J. P. Huston and Mrs. W. S. Woods, of Kansas City, Mo. The pastor, Rev. E. M. Green will conduct a short service at the Price residence on Main street Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, after which the remains will be taken over to the Southern to Kansas City for interment.—Hanville Messenger.

Mrs. Lackey was the sister-in-law of Miss Jennie Lackey, of this city.

LEGISLATURE

Quits Amid Riotous Scenes

General Registration Bill Passed As Dycus Returns To Party Fold.

The 1922 General Assembly adjourned early Thursday morning at Frankfort after the clocks had been set back for several hours to allow additional time.

The feature of the closing night's session was the return of the recalcitrant Senator Dycus, of Benton, to the party fold, thus enabling the Democrats to pass the general registration bill over the Governor's veto. The bill, aimed at mountain frauds, requires the registration of every voter in the State during the month of July, 1922.

The road bond issue, carrying the commission as agreed upon in the Democratic caucus, was defeated 26 to 11, as original proponents of the bond issue denounced the changes which the Senate Democrats proposed.

Among outstanding legislation enacted during the session were:

Various measures effecting the State public schools system.

The Bingham Co-operative Marketing Law.

An act providing for two additional normal schools.

Another by which Kentucky women gain complete status as citizens.

Measures strengthening the State prohibition law.

Acts increasing penalties for robbery and murder.

The party emblems on ballots in Louisville have been outlawed by a measure passed over the Governor's veto.

The city government bill, which enables Louisville to alter its form of government.

A measure creating a State Highway Commission of four members and others adding 600 miles to the highway system.

Many Laws Aid Schools.

Many measures were passed for the purpose of improving the State public school system.

This General Assembly has abolished special character schools, leaving in the State only first, second, third and fourth class city schools, graded schools and common schools.

It has fixed the minimum tax rate for graded districts, requiring them to maintain seven-month school terms and a standard high school and to have at least seventy-five enrolled.

It has provided for a County Board of Education of five members elected from districts instead of the county at large and for subdistrict trustees to be elected instead of appointed.

The Senate killed all bills aimed at putting the office of county superintendent back into politics. It abolished the county teachers' institutes and substituted the summer teacher training schools, and raised the budget of the department of education from $19,000 to $45,000 so the superintendent can appoint a professional staff.

The big reputation of Tanlac has been made by doing what other medicines fail to do.

An Earnest Effort

The following prayer is reported to have gone forth from the pulpit of a negro preacher in Mississippi:

"O Lawd give thy servant this mornin' the eyes of the eagle and the wisdom of the owl, connect his soul with the gospel, telephone in the central skies; luminate his brow with the sun of Heaven, pizen his mind with love for de people, turpentine his imagination, grease his lips with pessum oil, loosen his tongue with the sledge hammer of thy power, 'lectricity his brain wid de lightnin' of de word, put 'petual motion in his ahms, fill him plum full ob de dynamite ob dy glory, 'noint him all over wid de kerosene oil ob dy salvation and sot him on fire. Amen."

GOOD OLD TIMES

How Would You Like To Return To Them?

The Glasgow Times says: From an old, old almanac of 100 years ago, the following price-list is taken:

Home made whiskey 20c per gallon.

Apply brandy, same.

Roads were not marked. Planks were laid down broadwise and run over until they sank in the mud. The road was then taken up, thrown away and a new plank laid down.

The farmers did not go to the grocery store everyday for provisions. There were no groceries to go to, and every farmer cured his own meats and raised his own wheat and corn.

The meats were bacon, side meats, streak-o'-lean and streak-of-fat, and smoked hams and sausage, venison and occasional roast of beef for Sunday when the preacher came around or there was a wedding. Chickens were worth fifty cents a dozen when they were sold at all. Eggs retailed for 2c to 4c per dozen.

Corn was $1 per barrel and oats were 15c per bushel.

Brown sugar retailed at five cents per pound, and maple sugar at 4 cents. Tree molasses, or maple syrup, sold at 50 cents per gallon.

Everybody picked their own geese for featherbeds. Squirrels were so plentiful that they sold for 5c a dozen when they were sold at all.

The men wore brown jeans with brass buttons for Sunday-go-to-meetings. Green walnut bark dyed all the jeans, and everybody wore boots. When a young man was particularly anxious to look sweet in his girl's eyes, he wore boots with red tops and took his girl up behind him on his horse when they went to church.

Seasonal Tips

For Gardeners

Planning succession crops for the garden will make it possible to grow the greatest number of vegetables on the space available. Early peas can be followed by fall beets or celery, early radishes by lettuce and this in turn with late turnips, and early cabbage by late potatoes, fall beets or turnips.

Radishes should mature in from 25 to 40 days from the time of planting the seed, lettuce in from 60 to 90 days, parsley in from 90 to 100 days and early potatoes in from 90 to 120 days. Tomatoes should mature in from 125 to 140 days after the plants are set in the field.

As soon as the ground is dry enough, the asparagus bed should be thoroughly worked and the manure that is not worked into the soil raked off to the side of the row.

Rhubarb or pie plant deserves a place in every garden. The plants may be started by obtaining a few roots and planting them about three or four feet apart and covering them with about three inches of soil. Since the plants last from five to eight years, it is well to place them at one side of the garden. The use of large supplies of manure in keeping the soil rich will be found helpful in growing this crop, gardening specialists at the College of Agriculture say.

About April 1st, beets, early cabbage plants, lettuce, parsley and carrots can be planted in the garden.

Law and order is commendable only when enforced.

Brush up the front yard before some one brushes up your memory.

Like the tiresome guest, winter is most popular when it comes and goes.

A dollar saved is not necessarily a dollar earned. It may have been stolen.

LAND VALUES

Greatly Reduced, According To March Crop And Land Value Report

The March crop report issued by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna shows that the average values of improved farm lands in Kentucky have fallen to about two thirds what they were March 1st, 1920, and that on March 1, 1922, Kentucky farmers held about 83 per cent of their previous 5-year average amount of corn, 78 per cent of their 5-year average amount of wheat, and 72 per cent of their 5-year average amount of oats. The carry-over of corn and oats March 1, 1921, from the 1920 crop was large, but these crops in Kentucky in 1921 were much smaller than the 1920 crops.

The average amount of corn on Kentucky farms March 1, 1917 to 1921 inclusive, has been about 40,647,000 bus. and of oats about 2,001,000 bushels. Of last year's Kentucky corn crop 41 per cent (or 33,682,000 bus.) still was held by farmers March 1, 1922, compared to 50 per cent of the 1920 crop (or 50,844,000 bus.) on farms March 1, 1921. About 12 per cent of Kentucky's 1921 wheat crop (or 761,000 bus.) was held on farms March 1, 1922, compared to 15 per cent of the 1920 crop (or 900,000 bus.) on farms March 1, 1921. Of the 1921 Kentucky oat crop farmers held 26 per cent (or 1,447,000 bus.) March 1st, 1922, compared to 36 per cent of the 1920 crop (or about 2,369,000 bus.) held on farms March 1, 1921. Kentucky farmers' holdings of barley (nearly all of which is grown in a few Blue Grass counties) was about the same (11,000 bus.) March 1, 1922 and March 1, 1921, about 10 per cent of the previous year's crop being held on farms March 1, both years.

Average land values, according to reports from farmers and others throughout Kentucky, have fallen from $85 per acre average for improved farms March 1, 1920, to $57 average March 1, 1922, and from $62 average for unimproved farm lands March 1, 1920 to $42 average March 1, 1922. The average value per acre reported this spring for poor plow land is $28 compared to $42 two years ago; good plow land $67 compared to $95 two years ago; and the average of all grades of plow land $47 compared to $70 March 1, 1920. As there have been comparatively few sales during the last several months these estimated values are based partly on previous sales and on prices at which farmers now are holding, as well as on recent sales, this year's valuations being, therefore, largely estimates.

Value per acre of Kentucky farm lands: With improvements, 1922, $57; 1921, $65; 1920, $85; and 1919, $84. Without improvements, 1922, $42; 1921, $46; 1920, $62 and 1919, $60.

KIND HEARTS

By ADELAIDE R. REMP

Matzie was in a very absent-minded mood. She generally presided over the nation counter in Smith & Carter's stuffs basement with the air of a queen, but this morning her mistakes were many and varied. Her latest customer, a stout lady, after an unsuccessful attempt to untie silk of an impossible blue had called indignantly away, when Matzie, glancing to the front of the store, saw something that brought the pink of roses to her pretty cheeks. A somewhat hunking young man in grimy overalls and blue shirt was scolding his way in her direction. He stopped for a few moments of low-toned conversation and then continued toward the hardware department.

"Who's your friend?" asked Annie the blond girl.

"Oh, his name's Dan Blake," answered Matzie with a conscious blush. "I met him at one of the community walks. He works over in the machine shop. He just asked me to the movies tonight. Don't you think he's nice looking?"

"He might be if he cleaned himself up," agreed Annie.

This struck an answering chord in Matzie's heart. Then she glanced with admiration at the immaculate and floor-walker Mr. Barker. Even as she gazed he turned and came over to her counter.

"Say, Matzie, you sure do bloom in the clearest air," he said looking with rather bold admiration at her pink cheeks and sparkling eyes. "There's a dandy picture over at the Paragon tonight. If you say so I'll meet you there at eight." Matzie accepted the invitation at once.

After that gleam seemed to settle over the basement like a dark cloud.

Of course she had not actually promised Dan, but she knew down in her heart she had fully intended to go with him when he had asked her. She had an uncomfortable tightening to the region of her throat. At that moment a host of high school girls came chatting down the stairs and over to her direction. Rich furs open at the throat showed gorgeous crapes, and short skirts displayed trim French heels and silk stockings. But they found no charm in Matzie's eyes.

"Did you see that good-looking young walker smile at me?" giggled one tall damsel.

"Oh, that's nothing," answered another, "I've seen a paper of pins with a most patronizing air. 'His mother keeps a boarding house on the corner of our block. A real awful dirt and has a different girl about every night in the week.'"

After that Matzie's heart lightened in the face of a great resolve. When the big gang came to the point where she stopped on her way out of the store beside Mr. Barker who was arranging his goods to be to a greater satisfaction to himself before a small mirror.

"I won't be able to go to the Paragon with you tonight, Mr. Barker," she said. "I have another engagement," and before the astonished young man could reply Matzie was gone.

That night, sitting side by side in the red plush chairs in the cinematograph room, Matzie and Dan enjoyed the program to the fullest extent. Especially interesting was the little romance which showed the little apartment with a still prettier little wife getting supper and a fat baby lying in a cradle. Dan reached over and took Matzie's hand lightly. Out on the street they lingered in front of a brilliantly lighted furniture store. Two dollars down and five a month furnished just such an apartment as they had seen in the movies. Dan pressed the warm little hand that he had tucked under his arm.

"Isn't it peachy?" Matzie began, then she checked herself and blushed with a good grace.

"We could have one just like that if you would, Matzie," whispered Dan. The quick, happy glances in her eye told Dan that Matzie would. "And," he continued joyfully, "after a moment's silence, 'We won't have to get it like that, either. You see, Dad owns the biggest part of the shop, only he wanted me to know the business thoroughly, so I began at the foot of the ladder.'"

They walked on happily. Ahead of them Matzie could see the "swell" Mr. Barker, a simply and stylish ornament. She only pressed closer to Dan with a happy heart and a deep gratitude that she had realized before it was too late that all that glittered was not gold.

Psychanalyzing Alice.

Andie Tridon, who is the extension of Freud's shadow over America, has been saying a few words about Alice of "Alice in Wonderland" fame. Alice it seems, has grossly deceived us, she is, as her creator was a dangerous parrot-like and should not be allowed to play with nice little children. Tridon gives overwhelming arguments in proof of these assertions, their only weakness being that they apply with equal force to psychanalysts themselves, and he leaves us with the impression that Lewis Carroll should be kept placed in an asylum and deprived of pen and ink. The creator of Alice has passed on, but the outline of a very much with us. It would be a pity to have Lewis Carroll's opinion of the Wonderland creature and Tridon.—Scientific American.

How Firestone Has Reduced the Cost of Tire Service

33 x 4 1/2 "	67.00	42.85	36%
33 x 5 "	81.50	52.15	36%

HOW the cost of building quality tires has been brought down to the lowest level in history was explained by H. S. Firestone, President of the Company, to the stockholders at the annual meeting on December 15, 1921.

1. All inventories and commitments at or below the market.
2. Increased manufacturing efficiency and volume production reduced factory overhead 58%.
3. Selling costs reduced 38%.

Mr. Firestone stated, "This reduction in prices is made possible by our unusually advantageous buying facilities, and the enthusiasm, loyalty and determination of our 100% stockholding organization."

"Due credit must be given to Firestone dealers who are selling Firestone tires on a smaller margin of profit. This brings every Firestone saving direct to the car-owner."

The saving through first cost plus the saving through high mileage doubles Firestone economy and is daily adding new fame to the Firestone principle of service—

WELL-MADE KITCHEN SINK ADDS MUCH TO COMFORT AND HEALTH

Double Sinks Make Dish Washing an Easier Task.

(Prepared by the Federal Bureau of Investigation)

Two pans on a table, filled with water carried from the stove, to be carried on again when the dishes were washed, was the usual method 20 years ago. A gallon of water weighs about eight pounds and the woman in a house having no water system carried several tons of it in the course of a year. Today every well-equipped home has a water system. If it does not, it has at least a sink with a drain which saves carrying out of doors the waste water.

In buying a new sink many factors are to be taken into consideration. Some of them, given in a Farmers' Bulletin "The Farm Kitchen As a Workshop," follow:

"The size of the family, and of the kitchen, must determine the size of the sink installed, but a short sink with ample table and shelf room near it may be more convenient than a long sink. Two smaller sinks, one for the table dishes near the dining room and the other for general use in the kitchen, are very convenient.

With No Square Corners.

"The material of the sink should be the best available, nonabsorbent of grease as well as moisture, and there should be no cracks or square corners to increase the work of keeping it clean. A wooden sink and sink apron, even when they receive an annual coat of paint, will absorb moisture and grease, which attract insects, are likely to be swarming with bacteria, and to 'sour' and have an unpleasant odor. Even drain boards of wood are not recommended unless they have a waterproof finish of varnish, oil, or paint. If a wooden sink is necessary, it is better to have it metal lined, provided the sheets of metal, which usually is tin, zinc, galvanized iron, copper or lead are soldered where they are joined, and all parts of the sink, including the tops of the sides, covered with the metal, so that there is no chance for the wood to absorb moisture. Another plan is to have a cement sink built into a wooden frame and lined with sheet copper or tin.

Iron sinks of good quality are superior to wooden ones, since they do not absorb grease or moisture, and are durable. They are kept clean easily, if smooth, and they will soon wear smooth, but they have the disadvantage of neither showing dirt nor precluding their cleanliness. Unless the front is protected by a strip of wood the dresser and aprons of the worker are likely to become stained with iron rust.

A soapstone or a slate sink is durable, but sometimes becomes uneven with wear, and if this happens, much brushing and scrubbing are required to remove the sand and grease that gather in the depressions when vegetables are cleaned or dishes washed. Like iron, they do not show whether they are clean.

Some Expensive Sinks.

Enameled-iron sinks are smooth, last well with careful use, and may be kept clean easily, but they are more expensive than iron. Porcelain sinks are similar to the enameled ones, but their price is almost prohibitive. Perhaps the ideal plan would be to have an enameled or porcelain sink for the tableware in the kitchen or the pantry, for the dining room, and an iron or soapstone sink for the heavier kitchen work.

The double sinks, with one basin for washing and another for draining dishes, are very convenient, but unfortunately they are relatively expensive. A small sink with a rubber stopper for its escape pipe may be used as a dishpan when two sinks are used.

The wall behind the sink should be covered with some material that will not absorb water or grease, and that is high enough to hold the faucets if there are any. A solid back of the same material as the sink reduces the number of places which collect dirt and attract insects. Better than either of these, however, is a sink and back made in one piece. Sheet zinc may be used when a solid back cannot be obtained, but it must be carefully fitted and nailed in place.

It is important that the sink stand true and level for if it does not there may be a point lower than the drain where water can settle. Many good sinks are built with a slight slope to ward the drain. In case water is scarce and it is difficult to flush the drainpipe properly after the sink has been used, it may be better to wash dishes on the table and carry away the waste water, opening to all pipes in tubs and sinks should be screened to prevent clogging of the drains.

Beware of the Muddy Closet.

The plumbing must be easy of access, and therefore, it is better that there should be no closet under the sink. Hooks or shelves under the sink or near it will accommodate everything usually kept in the dark, often messy, "sink closet" of older kitchens. A "sink closet" can be kept sweet and clean, but it means extra work to do it. It is far wiser to have the extra things in sight and in order than to have the extra work of keeping the "sink closet" clean or run the risk of having it an untidy place, which is no better just because it is out of sight. If there is a shelf under the sink it should be from 4 to 6 inches narrower than the sink, and at such a height that the floor under it can be easily cleaned.

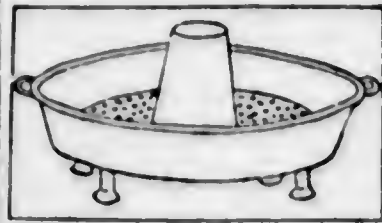

If possible there should be a wide shelf or drain board on each side of the sink on the level with the rim of the latter, one to receive soiled dishes and the other clean ones. Some housekeepers have these covered with zinc, but, as in all other places where it is used, the metal must be neatly fitted and closely fastened down so as not to leave any chance for loose, rough edges, or to provide breeding places for insects or a lodging place for grease and dirt. If there is no place for permanent shelves, adding or hinged shelves may be used. A right-handed person usually holds the dish in the left hand while washing or wiping it, and the dishcloth, dish mop, or towel in the right hand. It is convenient, therefore, to have the dishes move from right to left as they pass from dish pan to rinsing pan, and from rinsing pan to drainer and tray. This should be kept in mind and provision made for soiled dishes at the right and for a drain board at the left of the sink.

INEXPENSIVE DISH DRAINER

Quite Easy Matter to Arrange Convenient Kitchen Utensil by Using Old Milk Pan.

It isn't possible for all of us to buy a dish drainer, no matter how much we would like to have one, says a writer in an exchange.

However, the dish drainer described here is within the reach of everyone.

Handy Dish Drainer.

Punch holes in the bottom of an old milk pan, and nail four spoons on it for legs. In the center, nail an old coffee can or baking powder can for the silverware.

Always start coffee with cold water. Lemon juice improves whitefish salad.

Mix pastry with a knife and handle it as little as possible.

SANITARY SWINE PRODUCTION

Common Intestinal Round Worms Largely Responsible for the High Death Rate Among Pigs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What makes the difference between thrifty pigs and unthrifty ones? Naturally, there are many causes, including breeding, feeding and shelter, but a main one and one that may easily be overcome is worms—the common intestinal round worms. These parasites are often largely responsible for the high death rate among young pigs, and many cases of so-called thumps are the result of worm infection. The average farmer, possibly, would give a great deal to be able to stop this loss.

But a new and effective method of worm eradication, devised by the United States Department of Agriculture and used with success by members of the McLean county (Ill.) farm bureau, is available to any farmer who is willing to go to a little trouble, or who visited the government exhibit at the International live stock exposition held at Chicago, November 29 to December 3. There were shown for comparison a pen of worms and a pen of pigs raised free from worms; the worms themselves, alive and wriggling were also on exhibition. In one pen was a litter of six pigs that gained during a certain period, because of the parasites, only 171 pounds; in a neighboring pen was another six pig litter kept on the same feed as the wormy litter, but raised without worms that gained 332 pounds in the same length of time.

This system of swine sanitation to eradicate worms is simplicity itself. First it is necessary to clean the farrowing pens with hot water and lye. Then wash the dirt from the skins of the sows before farrowing and put them in the clean pens. Within two weeks after farrowing remove the sows and pigs to a clean pasture, and keep the young pigs on clean pasture for at least four months. In order to produce strong, healthy, profitable pigs it is, of course, necessary that they have good feed, water and shelter in addition to worm-free surroundings.

FEED GARBAGE ON PLATFORM

Concrete Floors Are Very Satisfactory and Permit of Convenient Cleaning.

Where the garbage is delivered on the farm by wagon or motor truck the best plan is to feed it to hogs in lots of about an acre in size which contain one or more feeding platforms provided with a 2 by 4 ledge on the sides to prevent the garbage from being shoved off the platform. These platforms should be mounted on skids and frequently shifted from place to place in the feed lot. After the material has been unloaded on the platform the hogs are turned into the lot. Where the garbage is delivered in railroad cars it is advisable to have the feeding platforms adjacent to the railroad tracks. Platforms of concrete are very satisfactory and permit of convenient and thorough cleaning.

HOGS REQUIRE LITTLE SALT

Too Large Quantities Orange Stomach and Bowels and Cause Different Ailments.

Of the common classes of farm animals, namely horses, cattle, sheep and swine, the latter have the least need of salt. This is in all probability due to the difference in diet, that of the swine usually consisting largely of the usual grain, whereas other classes consume large quantities of roughage in which less salt is found. Too large quantities of salt orange the stomach and bowels of swine, causing gas, diarrhea, convulsions and paralysis, often resulting in death.

HARMFUL TO BREEDING HOGS

Self-Feeders Are Excellent for Market Stock, but for Breeders They Are Not Good.

Self-feeders, while they are fine for market hogs, are damaging to breeding stock. Where pigs have access to a self-feeder they will eat their fill and then snore until they are hungry and eat again, refusing to exercise and holding back their growth.

LOUISVILLE'S BIG FASHION SHOW AND EXPOSITION, MAR. 31 TO APR. 8

The Most Gorgeous Fashion Pageant Ever Staged In the South

Stunning Models, Professional Theatrical Attractions, And Fashion Shops of Rare Beauty

Louisville's big armory will be transformed into a veritable city of fashion when "Paris on Parade", Louisville's style show and exposition, takes place the week of March 31 to April 8. Eighty-four of the city's biggest and liveliest merchants will exhibit and they will not only have smart shops representing the shops of Paris in which to display the newest of spring fashions, but half of that number will be represented by special models who will promenade the boulevards of this make-believe city in the smartest of spring attire. Men as well as women will be represented in this distinguished group who will be brought from New York and Chicago. Over fifty professional models will take part in these daily parades. They will be under the direction of Miss Josephine Lehr, who is recognized as one of the leading fashion models in America. Leo Hawes, who won fame last year in his draping acts, will be on the program this year and he will give several acts in which he will drape on the figures the most beautiful gowns from a few strips of material. Miss Flo Dillon, of New York, said to possess a perfect thirty six, will be one of his models. One of the big professional acts which will be brought to Louisville especially for the style show is Marie Young's Follies of 1922, which will come directly from Marigold Gardens in Chicago where these famous players have been for several months. It is said to be one of the most elaborate musical revues on the road and several stars are included in the cast.

Another of the big attractions will be the famous beautiful parade where paraphernalia will be exhibited.

The children's section will also be of particular interest for each day the big show will be opened with the promenade of child models ranging in ages from two to sixteen years.

The decoration of the big armory will be the most elaborate ever produced in Louisville. The big drill hall will be converted into a French city with its beautiful moon, twinkling stars, its boulevards, its Eiffel tower, its arch de triumph, its French flower girls and its gendarmes, exact reproductions of the original city of fashion. Preparations are being made to entertain over 100,000 people during the course of the eight days of the show and every indication is that the mammoth show will surpass last year's pageant in every way.

Carpet Cleaning.

If the carpet must be cleaned at home, first beat it thoroughly, and if you have a vacuum cleaner go over it with that. Then make a wad of cotton about the size of an apple. Cover it with linen and go over the carpet with this dipped in a 5 per cent benzene soap solution. If the colors are dulled, sponge it in a weak acetic acid solution.

Superstition Concerning Caut.

The caut is a thin membrane found encompassing the head of some children when born, and it is considered a good omen for the children themselves. This superstition probably became widespread about the time of the Emperor Antoninus Pius. When he was born he had a band of membrane around his forehead in the shape of a diadem, and he attributed all his good fortune to this caul, and this started the sale of them. A few sailors carrying them who then happened to be saved from shipwreck ascribed the superstition toward mariners.

SHEEP INDUSTRY PROFITABLE

Necessary to Well-Balanced Agriculture and Pays Well if Hardly Are Handled Right.

In this country the sheep industry has had frequent ups and downs, and recently it has been very much depressed, but it is an industry necessary to a well-balanced agriculture and usually it pays fairly good returns when flocks are properly handled. Wool is a staple commodity and mutton is a regular part of our diet, though it is much less used than beef or pork. Conditions in many parts of the United States are excellent for sheep raising and there can be little doubt that with a relatively short time the sheep will be more profitable than during the past year.

Present conditions of depression are abnormal, just as the period of unusual prosperity was abnormal. There is a surplus of wool on hand in the country now, but it is being used up faster than it is being replaced by production on American farms. Even now mutton and lamb are in sufficient demand so that, in connection with wool, sheep raising is a good business. In the farming areas more attention is paid to mutton making; the range men have given more attention to wool, but now demand more on the returns for lamb and mutton than they have in the past.

FORESTS TURNING OUT MEAT

Transform Into Marketable Product Weeds and Grass That Otherwise Would Be Lost.

Proposed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Through its issuance of paid grazing permits to stockmen the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture not only secures for the government a considerable sum of money, but it transforms into a marketable product weeds and grass that would otherwise be lost. In addition, grazing reduces the fire hazards in the forests.

In one year, it is estimated, the national forests turn out approximately 200,000,000 pounds of lamb and mutton and 2,000,000,000 pounds of beef. Many lambs are born in the forests and leave them only when they are ready to be

TRIALS

Show More Farmers Would Profit By Silo Use

Results of beef feeding trials conducted in various parts of the State show that the silo could be added as a profitable piece of equipment to many Kentucky stock farms that do not have one at the present time, beef cattle specialists at the College of Agriculture say. The State now has about 10,000 silos, this number being sufficient to take care of only about five per cent of the State's corn crop when it is made into silage, it is said.

The chief advantages of a silo are that it provides economical storage, preserves the corn or forage crop in a succulent and palatable condition and permits the complete utilization of the crop for feed. Regardless of whether or not it is made of hallow tin, cemented wooden staves, cement staves or monolithic concrete, the silo must have certain features in order to produce sweet silage of a desirable kind. J. B. Kelley, head of the college farm engineering section has pointed out.

The walls should be amply reinforced to resist the bursting pressure of the silage. The greatest amount of reinforcing is needed at the bottom and the least at the top.

In order to permit even settling of the silage to eliminate air pockets, it is essential that the walls of the silo be smooth and free from rough spots. When such air pockets are formed, they usually result in spoiled silage.

In order to produce good silage it is necessary that the air be excluded and the water retained. For this reason it is essential that the walls be tight.

Length of the feeding season and the number of cattle to be fed will determine the size of the silo. Since it is necessary to feed from one and one-half to two inches of silage daily off the top to keep it sweet, the diameter of the silo will vary with the number of stock to be fed.

The 1,400,000 sheep and cattle that move into the forests every spring are drawn from a wide area of surrounding territory, and in the fall they pour out in great streams to such central markets as Chicago, Kansas City and Omaha, where they are turned into meat products that go to all parts of the country.

PLAN TO MARKET LIVE STOCK

Study of Costs and Methods Being Made by United States Department of Agriculture.

The United States Department of Agriculture is making a study of the costs and methods of marketing live stock, beginning at country points. The work is to be done mainly in a number of selected areas in important live stock sections of the country. The plan is to select areas usually consisting of several counties and to study carefully the costs and methods of raising of the various species in each area as well as furnish any satisfactory information. The study will include country buyers, local shipping associations, local elevator handling live stock, and independent shippers. In several instances the work is being done in cooperation with the states. A number of men from the department are now in the field collecting data on the subject.

The practice of heating or warming the drinking water for live stock during the winter has been followed pretty generally by most livestock farmers, using anything from an old kettie to a modern tank heater.

Rape Pasture Balances Corn For Growing Pigs

By reason of the food materials which it contains, rape has come to be recognized as one of the best pasture crops with which to balance a corn alone ration for growing pigs, experienced hog raisers say. When young, the crop contains as much protein as many legumes, it is said, and the proportion of protein to carbohydrate found in it makes it an ideal forage crop for offsetting the large amount of carbohydrate present in corn. The crop can be seeded as soon as the ground is dry enough and when seeded early will supply pasture from May until frost.

"In the College of Agriculture farm, we have found that the crop does well only on rich soil," H. C. Sellards, swine field agent said. "In Iowa it has furnished as much as 18 tons of green feed an acre but should not be pastured when there are less than five blades remaining on the stalk."

"When the crop is to be grown alone for hog pasture, five to eight pounds of seed sowed into each acre will give a good stand although the heavier rate of seeding is preferable since the seed is cheap. It also may be used with oats, three to five pounds of rape and one and one-half bushels of oats an acre being a good rate of seeding in this case. When used with oats and clover, about three pounds of rape, one bushel of oats and eight pounds of clover seed an acre will be found satisfactory."

EVERY VOTER IN STATE MUST BE REGISTERED NOW

First Registration Days July 10th. And 11th.

(By Will S. Keltnerbach.)

The Smith-Minor bill, known as the State-wide Registration Bill, passed over the Governor's veto, requires registration of voters in every precinct in Kentucky. This was a companion bill to the Blind and Illiterate Voters' Bill, which failed to receive a constitutional majority over the Governor's veto.

The registration bill will become effective June 13, ninety days after the adjournment of the Legislature, when all acts passed by the recent Legislature, not carrying emergency clauses, become laws.

The new Registration law, which applies to the entire State, completely revolutionizes the system of enrolling the voters. Heretofore this has been confined to cities and towns of the first four classes. Under the new arrangement every voter in the State must be registered before he or she is qualified.

The law further provides that the Board of Election Commissioners of each county, not later than June 20, 1922, and annually thereafter, shall appoint for each precinct in the county two judges, one sheriff and clerk to conduct the registration. The registration officers are to be chosen from lists of eight names for each precinct furnished by the governing authorities of the Democratic and Republican parties, these lists to be submitted on or before June 15. Stipulation is made that the registration officers must be divided equally between the two parties.

Registration officers are prohibited from holding any elective or appointive office during their term or for a year following.

Voters desiring to register must sign the registration book, the signature to be attested by the registration Clerk and Sheriff. In addition to the name, age and sex of each registrant the description shall include his or her occupation, color or race, weight and height or other means of identification and the party affiliation of the registrant. In the event that the registrant states upon oath that he or she cannot write his or her name the clerk shall sign the registration book.

Any judge of a primary or general election may require a voter to sign his or her name for comparison with the signature on the registration book.

The law fixes the second Monday in July each year for the registration of voters in every precinct in the State, but it is provided that this year the registration shall be held on July 10 and 11. The hours of registration are fixed from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M. In addition another registration day is provided to be held in each precinct sixty days prior to the general election. Supplemental registration before the County Clerk is done away with.

Register Once in Precinct.

The law contemplates only one registration in a lifetime for the voter who remains in the same precinct. Provision is made that whenever a voter removes to another precinct in the same county, he shall apply to the County Clerk for a transfer of his registration to the proper predict, which must be done sixty days prior to a general election. Voters removing from one county to another are required to obtain a certificate of registration from the County Clerk of the county in which they are registered and present the same to registration officers of the precinct in the county to which they have removed at the next regular registration day in the following July.

Any registered voter upon application to the County Clerk may change his or her party affiliation on the registration book not less than sixty days before any primary or general election.

Court Purgation Eliminated

Upon the demand of the governing authority of either party purging of the registration in the cited precincts is provided for by the appointment of two officers whose duty it shall be to purge the polls. Demands for purgation shall not be made after September 15th. Challenged voters shall be cited to appear before the two purgation officers sitting in the precinct on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in October. If the two purgation officers agree that the registrant has been illegally enrolled the name shall be stricken from the registration book. In the event that the two officers disagree as to the legality of any registration they are required to reduce the facts to writing and certify same to the Circuit Clerk of the county who shall assign each case for hearing by the Circuit Judge who shall immediately hear the case de novo. This does away with the old-time purgation proceedings in the County Court. Appeal to the Circuit Court is provided for.

False registration is declared a misdemeanor and is punishable by imprisonment in the county jail from one month to a year. Registration officers guilty of altering any registration book or falsely registering any person are subject to imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to five years. Any person breaking up or interfering with the registration in an unlawful manner shall upon conviction be subject to a fine of from $100 to $500 or confinement in the county jail from six to twelve months or both.—Louisville Times.

CATHOLIC PRIEST FOR JEWISH RELIEF

Returns From Russian With Heart-Rending Stories of Terrible Destitution Among The People

Cry of Hundreds Standing All Night Long in Bitter Cold for Food Drip To Open Unforgettable

Attorney Ben S. Washer, of Louisville, in a recent address pleading for the raising of Kentucky's quota of $150,000 in the nation-wide campaign to raise $10,000,000 for the relief of starving and destitute Jewish people in Central and Eastern Europe, told of a talk he had with a Catholic priest, of Nashville, Tenn., who had just returned from a tour of that section.

"Conditions among the Jewish people in Central and Eastern Europe are terrible," said the priest. "I cannot urge too strongly upon the people of America so abundantly blessed of God the great opportunity now presented to help these Jewish people in that stricken land."

"One night while in Western Russia I was aroused from sleep in my hotel by a wail sound. Going to the window I could see in the pale light a long line of dark objects. I returned to bed but the mysterious, wailing cry became so pronounced that I dressed and went down stairs in the bitter cold. It was the bread line of the Jewish refugees. Although it was not yet midnight and the relief kitchen did not open until 8 o'clock in the morning, there they were, hundreds of starving, destitute children, old men and women, poorly clad, standing there all night long waiting for a cup of coffee and a crust of black bread.

"It was no surprise to me to learn later that many died in that line that night and that it was no unusual thing to see dozens of them yield to the ravages of destitution and expire on the spot. It was terrible to think, also, that many in that line could not be fed even though they remained in the bread line all through the bitter night. Only certain amounts of supplies are available and when these are exhausted the doors of the relief house must be closed.

"Personally I visited a hospital where hundreds of young Jewish girls who had been mistreated by evil men. They lay upon hard planks. Gummy socks were their pillows. Thin blankets were their only covering. The medical attention given them by the relief workers was good, but their poor, worn bodies, tortured by starvation and lack of clothing and their terrible treatment cried out in protest against such state of affairs.

"In one place I traveled along a road for a long distance by the side of a continuous mound of fresh dirt. It was a grave into which hundreds of bodies of Jewish people were thrown. The horror I saw there are unforgettable and the people of America will not to their duty unless they give liberally and now for the relief of these people."

Catholic people all over the country are showing a widespread interest in the work of the American Jewish Relief Committee. James A. McIntire, Supreme Knight of the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus, has given the movement his personal endorsement to David A. Brown, chairman of the National Appeal of the American Jewish Relief.

Child's Act

It is wise to take advantage of the tendency in young children to want to write and draw. Give them a pencil and let them draw around their blocks or around a heavy old cup. They'll be learning how to handle a pencil.

Has a Kick in It

According to the chemical experts, the grasshopper should be one of the best foods extant. Wherever man or beast have eaten them in large numbers they have thrived. The scientist says that the grasshopper is more than 40 per cent fat and that it is stuffed with proteins. Maybe the restaurants have been saving us grasshoppers for lunch chops when we were not looking. We always knew that a grasshopper had a kick in it.—Los Angeles Times.

Mistake Customs

Mistake, when not suspended in the air, is regarded by the superstitious as a harbinger of bad luck. There is an old custom for hanging a bunch of mistletoe in the center of the room, a custom which had nothing frivolous about it in the first place. Balder, in Scandinavian mythology, was killed by an arrow of mistletoe. On his being revived to life it was promised that the plant never again would perpetuate evil unless it touched the earth.

Swat The Fly Now

(By Dr. R. H. Bishop)

One female fly in April means millions in July. This is one reason why we should endeavor to kill off all the early flies and those left alive during the winter.

The fly is the universal pest of mankind existing in practically every country and clime on the globe.

Flies are disease carriers. They spread disease largely by carrying germs from filth upon which they have been feeding or walking and depositing these germs in or on articles of food or on dishes later used for food.

Flies also may directly infect persons by alighting when germ-laden, on lips or on cuts and sores. Germs carried by flies to milk, especially at the barn or dairy where the milk is made, may multiply rapidly and number millions by the time the milk is ready for distribution.

Flies have been examined and found to carry millions of germs on their feet, legs, sucking mouth parts, bodies and wings. The feet, legs and body are covered with thousands of hairs to which germ-laden filth readily adheres.

This filth and germs carried by flies cannot be seen by the naked eye, and thus many persons are inclined to disregard it, but when looked at thru the microscope thousands of germs are readily seen.

It is well to remember that the fly which crawls over your food at the dinner table may be fresh from a garbage or soap pail or a cuspidor.

Of course, we might command greater respect for the law by jailing the jurors who turn a known guilty man loose.

Cleaning

Glycerine is good to cleaning. To remove oil or fat stains saturate them with glycerine, allow them to stand several hours and then wash.
